Multi-faith Centre, University of Toronto
569 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

free
event

Please join our panelists in a dialogue on how the tenets of faith address issues of poverty and homelessness. Help us to explore and identify common ground on which we can build a multi-faith approach to these important issues.

Panelists:

Imam Abdul Hai Patel is immediate past Coordinator of the Canadian Council of Imams, representing the Islamic religious leadership. Currently, he is Director of Inter Faith relations. He has been serving as an Imam and community leader for 40 years in Canada. He is a founder and member of several Interfaith groups and active in interfaith dialogues.

The Right Rev. Terry Finlay is a retired Anglican Archbishop of Toronto. He is special envoy for the Head of the Anglican Church of Canada regarding Residential School Settlement and Healing and Reconciliation, and continues to be concerned about situations regarding the homeless, foodbanks and child poverty.

Rabbi Tina Grimberg is the spiritual leader of the Congregation Darchei Noam. Before coming to Toronto in 2002, she worked as Assistant Rabbi at Beth Elohim. While in rabbinical school she facilitated workshops for interfaith couples at the Jewish Community Centre of the Upper West Side in New York.

Nancy Dinnigan-Prashad is a member of the Baha'i Community of Toronto. She writes and consults on environmental health issues and advocacy for people with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD)

Pundit Eshwar Maharaj-Doobay is a licensed Hindu priest. He is the Hindu representative on the Toronto Regional Spiritual and Religious Care Committee for the Ontario Multifaith Council on Spiritual and Religious Care.

And moderated by Rev. Sherman Hesselgrave, pastor at the Church of the Holy Trinity in Toronto.

Refreshments will be served.
